A PASSIONATE AND FLAVORFUL GASTRONOMIC JOURNEY

"Tsiah-pá-buē?" is Taiwanese for "Have you eaten?" This question isn't just about food. More often than not, "Have you eaten?" actually means "How are you?" Taiwanese not only value food but also finesse in culinary arts, embodying the East Asian cultural passion and reverence for dining. Not just about satisfying hunger, Taiwanese cuisine is about eating artfully. Dining is a delightful journey, and many culinary enthusiasts embark on trips inspired by enchanting flavors that linger like a soulful dream. Delving deeper, gastronomy not only offers pleasures to the palate but also unveils local customs, cultural narratives and touching stories.

Taiwan has been called "Isla Formosa," or beautiful island, since the 15th century. The island boasts diverse ecological environments that have nurtured various local ingredients. Through imaginative interpretations, these ingredients are transformed into delightful dishes that sparkle in the eyes of visitors and the international media. Since the Michelin Guide offered its first Taiwan guide in 2017, Taiwan's culinary scene has been further elevated on the global stage. In the 2023 UK Great Taste Awards, Taiwanese tea won multiple prizes. Other Taiwanese delights grabbed the attention of the Great Taste Awards judges: A naturally brewed soy sauce from Pingtung, a county located in southern Taiwan, claimed the highest honor of three stars, and Hualien Fuli Township in eastern Taiwan earned one star for its rice. With its 3rd position in the 2023 Global Muslim Travel Index (GMTI) for "Non-OIC Destinations," Taiwan is eager to welcome Muslim visitors to experience its diverse culinary landscape.

This publication, centered around food tourism, caters to the vast community of Muslim travelers. A compilation of Muslim-friendly eateries in Northern Taiwan, restaurants are categorized into three sections: Authentic Taiwanese Flavors, International Cuisine, and Vegetarian Feasts. Various types of halal cuisine can be found within, allowing Muslim sojourners to explore the unique charm of Taiwan through experiencing food, accommodations, travel experiences and shopping.

GUIDEBOOK NAVIGATION: BEGIN YOUR CULINARY EXPLORATIONS IN TAIWAN

Welcome to Taiwan, a land known for its diverse culinary delights! In this guide, we journey to discover and savor Muslim-friendly dining experiences in Northern Taiwan including Taipei, New Taipei, Taoyuan and Keelung.

Our guide is designed with your convenience in mind. To ensure an ease of selection, we have categorized restaurants into three sections: Authentic Taiwanese Flavors, Vegetarian Delights and International Cuisine. Each category possesses a range of options that conform to Muslim dietary practices, allowing Muslim visitors carefree exploration of the richness of Taiwanese cuisine.

AUTHENTIC TAIWANESE FLAVORS

Taiwanese cuisine has unique Muslim-friendly options such as beef noodle soup and a great variety of seafood. Visitors adhering to halal dietary requirements can enjoy many authentic Taiwanese dishes by following this guide.

VEGETARIAN DELIGHTS

Taiwan has one of the world's highest percentages of vegetarians and a diverse range of vegetarian restaurants. Because of this, finding a variety of delicious vegetarian dishes that cater to Muslim visitors' dietary preferences is a simple affair.

INTERNATIONAL CUISINES

Within this category, you will find restaurants featuring diverse tastes from across the world including India, Italy, Thailand and many more iconic global culinary capitals.

The guidebook rates restaurants by two levels of Muslim-friendliness:

The restaurant has halal certification issued by an halal certification organization.

The restaurant is operated by Muslim owners or has Muslim cooks and maintains that it accords to halal standards.

To make your culinary explorations even more convenient, we have included public transportation information for each restaurant, allowing you to locate Muslim-friendly dining spots wherever you are.

Prepare to embark on a gastronomic journey that embraces both the diversity of Taiwanese cuisine and cultural sensitivity to your dietary needs. Let this guide be your companion as you navigate the vibrant tapestry of flavors awaiting you in this beautiful island nation.

Northern Taiwan is a vibrant region blending rich cultural heritage with modern urban living. Before exploring the Muslim-friendly culinary options at the heart of this, let's examine the geography of Northern Taiwan.

Taipei - The Heart of Northern Taiwan :

As the island's capital and largest city, Taipei City is the bustling hub of Northern Taiwan. Renowned for its iconic skyscrapers, historic temples and vibrant night markets, Taipei offers a perfect blend of tradition and modernity.

New Taipei - Urban Sophistication :

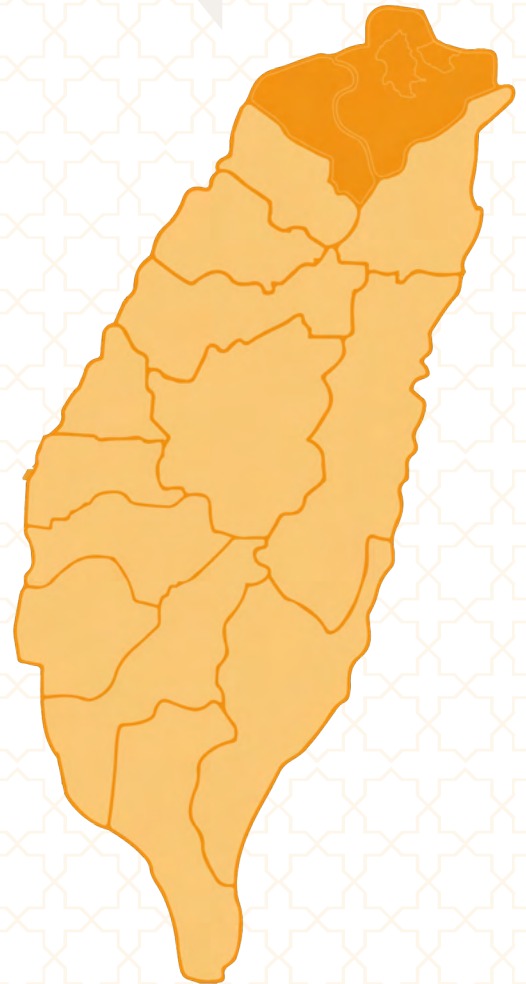

Surrounding Taipei City, New Taipei is a sprawling metropolis that combines urban development and natural beauty. From contemporary shopping districts to serene mountain landscapes, this area is a diverse setting for your culinary exploration.

Keelung - A Coastal Gem :

Nestled on the northern coast, Keelung is a picturesque port city known for its fresh seafood and bustling night market. The cityscape is complemented by a stunning coastline, making it a must-visit destination for food enthusiasts.

Taoyuan - Gateway to Taiwan :

As the gateway to Northern Taiwan, Taoyuan is an essential stop featuring modern conveniences and historical sites. Discover a range of halal-friendly options in this dynamic city that embodies the warm hospitality of Taiwan.

NORTHERN TAIWAN, YOUR FIRST STOP OF DISCOVERY

Northern Taiwan, centered around the capital of Taipei City, encompasses the administrative regions of Keelung, New Taipei and Taoyuan. Exhibiting a vibrant collision of cultures, Northern Taiwan is typically where international visitors begin their journey. Whether you are new to Taiwan or have limited time on your trip, the charm of Northern Taiwan is easily accessible from the international entry-point of Taoyuan Airport. Here, visitors can experience Taiwanese culture through a fusion of local flavors and culinary highlights from across the island alongside influences from around the world.

Taipei City and New Taipei form one of Taiwan's most significant metropolitan areas, geographically shaped by the convergence of the Keelung River and Tamsui River. Beyond rich natural landscapes such as the volcanic terrain of Yangming Mountain, the renowned hot springs of Beitou, Jinshan and Wulai and the unique coastal formations Queen's Head and Heping Island, the region also boasts diverse cultural landmarks. These range from the old-world charm of Dadaocheng and Tamsui Old Street to innovative attractions like CAFE ACME in the Taipei Fine Arts Museum, Taipei's unique double-decker dining car and the Zhilan Park Ocean Viewing Platform. Northern Taiwan offers a variety of experiences all within about a one-hour drive; beautiful mountain and ocean landscapes seamlessly transition into cosmopolitan urban environments in this vibrant region.

KEELUNG

📍 Zhengbin Fishing Port

If you come by cruise, Keelung will be your first stop in Taiwan. Known for the eagles at its harbor and the world's most beautiful sunrise at the Heping Island Geopark, Keelung is a must-visit location for travelers. The vibrant, colorful village of Zhengbin Fishing Port is an Instagram hotspot, and the recently opened i OCEAN Museum and Shen'ao Rail Bike allow you to explore the diversity of Keelung with ease.

Taoyuan, home to Taiwan's largest international airport, is sometimes overlooked, but here you can enjoy the well-preserved Baroque-style architecture of Daxi Old Street. Shopaholics also shouldn't miss the nearby outlets featuring a complete array of international brands at discounted prices, while the newly opened Xpark Aquarium, adjacent to the shopping center, takes you on a journey into the mysteries of the underwater world.

CULINARY DELIGHTS OF NORTHERN TAIWAN

Northern Taiwan serves as an important transportation hub; the Taoyuan airport and Keelung harbor are both located in this region, which has attracted a diverse population from across the island and abroad since the early stages of its development. This amalgamation of people from different places has not only brought their diverse cuisines to this region, it has also created a melting pot of culinary cultures, a phenomenon reflected in the restaurants mentioned in this book.

A FUSION OF DIVERSE FLAVORS

Northern Taiwan boasts the densest concentration of Muslim-friendly restaurants. Across this region you can find halal-certified Italian pizza, Indian cuisine, Thai dishes, Indonesian flavors, Turkish coffee shops and more. For those seeking unique flavors, this publication also introduces Muslim-friendly delicacies like Yunnan-Burmese cuisine from Southeast Asia's northern mountains.

Throughout its historical development, Taiwan has been a destination for significant numbers of immigrants. These populations have formed unique communities with distinct culinary heritages. For instance, on Huaxin Street in Zhonghe, New Taipei City, you can savor authentic Southeast Asian flavors. Since the 1960s, many Burmese Chinese have moved to this street and opened snack shops, restaurants and teahouses, offering rich milk tea, flavorful curry, noodles and groceries not commonly found elsewhere in Taiwan.

Longgang, Taoyuan became home to many military officers from northern Thailand and Yunnan after World War II and has developed a culinary landscape unique in Northern Taiwan. The distinctive spicy and sour migan (a type of rice noodle) bursts with aromatic spices and is a gastronomic delight exclusive to the area. Apart from savoring Muslim-friendly delicacies, there are also mosques local to Longgang.

YUMMY!

LOCAL CULINARY RICHES

Muslim visitors to Taiwan should not miss the iconic beef noodle soup. Introduced by Chinese immigrants after World War II, this fusion of hometown culinary techniques with Taiwanese seasoning has become a Taiwanese specialty. Northern Taiwan, with its diverse cultural influences, has the most concentrated offerings of beef noodle soup in Taiwan, and there are a multitude of styles you can try. The annual Taipei Beef Noodle Festival is the Oscars of the beef noodle soup world. The festival gathers distinctive restaurants from across Taiwan, allowing locals and international visitors to experience a wide selection of beef noodle soups spanning classic styles to innovative fusions. In the "Authentic Taiwanese Flavors" section of this publication, you will find numerous restaurants famous for beef noodle soup.

Taiwan is also a paradise for vegetarians, boasting the world's third highest percentage of vegetarians and a wide array of vegetarian cuisines. Taipei is home to many fashionable restaurants that focus on vegetarian options, including brunch and fusion cuisine. Through refined cooking techniques, these restaurants transform vegetarian ingredients into feasts of complex layers and varying textures, impressing even diehard meat eaters.

This book compiles Muslim-friendly restaurants in Northern Taiwan that encompass these diverse culinary elements. We hope Muslim travelers visiting Taiwan can easily experience the urban fashion, mountain beauty and delicious foods that this region has to offer.

THSR- Taiwan High Speed Rail

The Taiwan High-Speed Rail (THSR) is a pivotal element of the transportation network on the west side of Taiwan. The THSR seamlessly connects major cities with high-speed efficiency. Its route stops at twelve key stations: Nangang, Taipei, Banqiao, Taoyuan, Hsinchu, Miaoli, Taichung, Changhua, Yunlin, Chiayi, Tainan and Zuoying (Kaohsiung).

For passengers' convenience, the Taoyuan, Hsinchu, Taichung, Chiayi and Tainan stations provide bus connections, facilitating transportation to your final destination. The Nangang, Taipei, Banqiao, Taichung, Chiayi, Tainan and Zuoying stations offer comprehensive transportation connection, ensuring a smooth and integrated travel experience for international visitors exploring Taiwan.

Tickets can be booked online through the official website and phone app or at machines and counters at THSR stations. Fairs vary depending on the distance traveled and seats selected.

YUMMY!

When traveling by high speed rail you can find its special vegetarian bento on each station!

TRA - Taiwan Railways

Spanning the entire island, the Taiwan Railways Administration (TRA) network connects major cities and charming towns through its branching lines. Boasting many stations across Taiwan, the railway system features many stops and transfers by various modes of transportation.

There are types of trains you can book, including express trains (Tze-Chiang Limited Express, Puyuma Express, Taroko Express and Chu-Kuang Express), shuttle trains and local trains. Travelers can tailor their journey to their specific destinations, schedule and budget. Whether you're looking for swift inter-city travel or a leisurely exploration of local landscapes, the TRA can provide you with flexible and easily accessible transportation.

Tickets can be booked online through the official website and phone app or at machines and counters in TRA stations. Complimenting Taipei's urban metro system, the TRA is a great way to travel a bit farther from the city. Get ready to embark on a journey across Taiwan with the reliable and expansive Taiwan Railway!

Don't miss out on special railway bento lunchboxes! You can find special bentos in different stations or on the train including Muslim-friendly seafood and vegetarian options.

Taipei Metro

Taipei Metro (MRT) is a vital component of Taipei's transportation network, offering international visitors a swift, reliable and convenient means of navigating the city's vibrant districts. With an extensive network of six lines, including the Red Line (Tamsui-Xinyi), Green Line (Songshan-Xindian), Orange Line (Zhonghe-Xinlu), Blue Line (Bannan [Banqiao-Nangang]), Brown Line (Wenhua-Muzha) and Yellow Line (Circular Line), the metro system seamlessly connects key attractions, cultural landmarks and bustling neighborhoods.

Each metro station has coin-operated ticket machines for purchasing tickets. Fares for one-way tickets vary from NT$20 to NT$65. Travel passes are available at Taipei MRT station counters. These include one-day passes and 24/48/72hr Metro Passes with unlimited rides as well as stored value cards (EasyCard, iPASS, icash 2.0).

Taoyuan Airport MRT

The Taoyuan Metro features the Taoyuan Airport Line, specifically designed to meet the needs of travelers. This dedicated line connects key stations including A1 Taipei Main Station, A3 New Taipei Industrial Park, A8 Taoyuan HSR Station and the A12 and A13 Taoyuan Airport terminal stations. With quick and comfortable trains, passengers can travel between the heart of Taipei and Taiwan's international airport, ensuring a stress-free and time-efficient journey.

Trains are divided into express and commuter trains. One of each type departs every 15 minutes. An express train from Taipei Main Station to the airport takes about 35 minutes, while a commuter train takes about 50 minutes. A one-way ticket costs NT$160, and a counter on level B1 of the A1 Station (Taipei Main Station) offers check-ins including baggage checks for certain airlines.
